Today as never before, Wisconsin faces increasing demands for more efficient air transportation. The increasing volume of aircraft traffic, the need for more airports to maximize their play time. The business person counts on air travel to cut valuable time off his or her already crowded schedule, or to deliver that component to keep the just-in-time manufacturing process rolling along without a forced stop.

We're meeting those increased demands with a stepped-up airport development program that will upgrade our public airports to safely handle the expected increase in corporate and vacation travel. Runways have been strengthened and widened, taxiways have been resurfaced, lighting systems have been installed to improve visibility during inclement weather.

The designation of General Mitchell International Airport in Milwaukee as a supplementary airport to Chicago's O'Hare and Midway Airports will impact throughout the state, as primary commercial airports prepare for increased demands for connections to Milwaukee and other airports around the state. We're working hard to make sure that the greater light volume at Mitchell.

Despite this increased activity, Wisconsin's airports remain uncongested -- welcome cases of safety, efficiency and our friendliness. Whatever your reasons for flying over our beautiful state, you're among friends here in Wisconsin who are committed to your flying safety and pleasure. Welcome!

Tommy A. Thompson
